North Cloister

The Cloister

Salisbury Cathedral’s cloister is the largest in England. In its 800-year history it has been used for gatherings, processions and even housing Dutch prisoners-of-war.

Today the cloister has many uses and is an active part of cathedral life, adjoining our Chapter House which contains Magna Carta. Our Refectory sits in the north cloister arcade, looking out over the central courtyard which hosts wonderful works of art and beautiful cedar trees. The cloister is a place where all are free to wander and reflect.

Salisbury is one of only 10 cathedrals to have an in-house team of skilled stonemasons who still use original medieval carving techniques to conserve the cathedral for future generations. They are now about to start work on the north cloisters which are in urgent need of repair.

The north cloister is made up of some of the most elaborately carved stones on the cathedral and are crafted from local Purbeck and Chilmark stone. Repairing and replacing stones in this area will ensure the beauty and integrity of the building are preserved.

We are offering the exciting opportunity to sponsor a stone in the north cloister. By sponsoring a part of this treasured building, you will be helping to preserve and protect our precious heritage.

It was a wonderful experience to see the stones and where they were going to go. We enjoyed meeting the team, what incredible work they do.
